

Dearest Veteran,

The words "thank you" aren't enough to convey how much your work means to me and my family. There is no honorable work than the selfless work that you and your fellow soldiers commit to.

As a first generation immigrant from Korea, understanding the compassionate mission that American soldiers committed to is beyond honorable. My father who grew up during the Japanese occupation constantly reminds me that America is the only reason we live the life we do. No other country cares enough to police the world, and for that we thank you.

Forget the politics and propaganda, please know that families like ours owe and value our entire being to soldiers who were willing to fight for liberty. Often when politics vilify our roles in countries, please know that the people whom you're helping are thankful. We owe our entire being to those who sacrificed their lives on our behalf.

Thank you and know that your work is valued.

With extreme gratitude...

Lee family
